Language and Literacy Program
Portland Public Schools

This project expands and improves upon a long-standing partnership between the Department of Speech & Hearing Sciences and The Hearing & Speech Institute in conjunction with Portland Public Schools. In place since 2003, this is a literacy program for first and second graders at risk for reading problems. It provides a context for clinical training, community engagement and clinical research. Results demonstrate significant benefits to the community and the quality and diversity of graduate training.
