

Laurie Powers

Regional Research Institute for Human Services

The Regional Research Institute for Human Services (RRI) is nationally recognized for innovative practices in engaging community leaders and organizations at all levels of human service research and evaluation. A vibrant program of community-based participatory research brings together faculty, students and community leaders to make real improvements in the quality of life and services for our citizens. Ongoing professional development and capacity building activities support our use of innovative engagement approaches.

